DAY 4 Rome - Florence

Colosseo: The site is located in the heart of Rome, the capital of Italy. Also translated as the Roman Gladiatorial Arena and the Colisim Arena, it is a place for slave owners, nobles and free people in the ancient Roman Empire to watch the fighting beasts or slave fights, and it is also a witness of the glorious era of the Roman Empire.

Arco di Costantino: The latest of the three surviving triumphal arches in the city of Rome. Constantine the Great was founded to celebrate the unification of the empire.

Forum Romanum: The center of the city in ancient Roman times, strolling around the square is like stepping back in time to the ancient Roman Empire.

Fontana di Trevi : Because there are three roads in front of the fountain that extend outward, the "Trevi Trevi" of the Trevi Fountain means three forks in the road, which is the origin of the fountain's name. The Trevi Fountain fountain is the last masterpiece of Baroque architecture in Rome, the largest and most well-known fountain in Rome, and therefore one of the symbols of Rome, and the movie "Roman Holiday" became a famous fountain after it swept the world!

Piazza Venezia: The circular square of the city of Rome, modeled after Piazza San Marco in Venice, is surrounded by many historical buildings, museums, and galleries

The Mouth of Truth Bocca della verità is a marble carving, resembling a human face, located in the portico of the Greek Church of Our Lady of Greece in Rome, Italy. It may depict a god from an ancient Greek or Roman religion. The most famous feature of the Mouth of Truth is that it is used for lie detection. In the Middle Ages, it was believed that if someone lied, his hand would be bitten when he reached into his mouth.
